Virginia Military Institute,
LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA.
Session Opens 1st September.
The Report of the Special Board of Examiners for 1875 closes thus:—
In conclusion, your Committee cannot too highly commend what has seemed to them the marked and distinguishing features of this Institution, the happy combination of the military system of instruction with the departments of science and of literary culture, and the more ennobling culture of the heart and soul. Nowhere else have we seen this combination so complete and perfect. We cannot speak of it too highly. It is such a system as fits a pupil for life and for death. Under its guidance he is sure to tread always the path of duty, virtue and honor.

THE SPECIAL TAX BONDS.

The bill to raise Revenue being under consideration, on the 15th of February, 1869, Mr. JARVIS introduced a proviso to section 1, class 1. Section 1, class 1, reads: "Subject to the exemption allowed by law, there shall be an ad valorem tax of two-fifths of one per cent. in addition to the special taxes, which have been or may be levied to pay interest on bonds issued to or for railroad or other corporations, levied for the purpose of paying the expenses of the State government, the interest on the public debt, and such other liabilities of the State as the General Assembly may direct, upon the moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise, on the real and personal property."

The proviso of Mr. JARVIS to come in at the end of the above quoted section reads: "Provided, That all the taxes imposed upon the real and personal property of the State for State and county purposes shall, in no case, exceed two-thirds of one per cent." The proviso was adopted by a vote of 48 to 39. A motion was immediately made to reconsider the vote by which the proviso was adopted. Pending the motion to reconsider, on the 17th of February, Mr. JARVIS said:—

* * * "Now, sir, for the policy of this proviso. It is said, by gentlemen on this floor, that if we adopt this proviso, as a permanent feature of the tax bill, it is death to the system of railroads contemplated by this Legislature. A direct appeal is made to those who voted for these appropriations to be active to defeat this proviso by striking it from the bill. Even if it be true that the proviso would be injurious to the railroad interest, which seems to be so dear to some gentlemen, shall we be more awake to the interest of these projected lines of railroads, which are not yet begun, and may never be completed, than we are to preserve the Constitution of the State? Shall we be less mindful of the interest of an impoverished and over-taxed people than we are to soulless corporations? The warmest opponents of this proviso admit it is not clear that the Constitution does not limit taxation. If this doubt exists, is it not better to give the Constitution and the people the benefit of the doubt?

"But, sir, if the Constitution does not limit taxation, the ability of the people to pay, does. It is an easy matter for us to pass tax bills and direct the sheriffs to collect them. It is but the work of a day and a few strokes of the pen to prepare these bills. But in levying these taxes we should not lose sight of the people's ability to pay them, for it is useless to levy taxes if they are to remain unpaid. I contend that two dollars in the three hundred dollars worth of property, is all the people in their present impoverished condition can pay. It will be remembered that last year the State tax was only ten cents on the hundred dollars worth of property, and that but little of the personal property of the State was taxed, while under this bill everything is to bear its part. It will be remembered that last year the entire revenue of the State for State purposes was less than three hundred thousand dollars. Will you look back over the Journal of the Legislature at the large number of sheriffs we have been called upon to relieve from fines because they could not collect this small amount?

"As before stated, this bill will raise fifteen hundred thousand dollars for State purposes alone, besides the tax for county purposes to carry on the county governments. Here you have increased the amount of taxes which the people are to pay for State purposes, five times. Have you increased their ability to pay? Not at all. From all sections of the State there comes up a cry of want, of poverty, of scarcity and 'hard times.'

"If the people found it difficult to pay the small tax last year, will they not find it almost impossible to pay five times that amount this year? But that is not all. In the section to which I propose to add this proviso, you read that this tax of two-fifths of one per cent. shall be in addition to the "special taxes" levied for railroad purposes. The aggregate of the "special tax" is six-tenths of one per cent. levied for railroad purposes. This bill, as it now stands, authorizes the collection of that tax. Now, putting the estimated value of the property of the State at two hundred millions of dollars, and we have under this "special tax" twelve hundred thousand dollars as a "special tax" to pay interest on bonds issued or authorized by this Legislature. Now add the "special tax" and the general tax together, and we have a tax of twenty-seven hundred thousand dollars, to be paid by the people during this year. Only nine times the amount we paid into the State Treasury last year! Can the people pay it? The answer comes up from every hamlet in the State, No! Is this the cheap and economical government the Republicans promised the people under the new Constitution? Is this what Republican orators meant when they held up that Constitution to the people and told them that under it their taxes could never be high? Will the people call this a cheap government, think you?

"Mr. Speaker, it is known that when this Constitution was before the people for ratification, the Republican speakers from the seaboard to the mountains told the people that it limited taxation to sixty-six and two-third cents on the hundred dollars worth of property. The people ratified it with that belief, and this is the construction they put upon it. They were educated to this opinion by you gentlemen of the Republican party. You know you urged this upon them as one great reason why they should ratify the Constitution. You told them it would throw a wall of protection around them, over which the Legislature could not go. Will you, to-day, assist in tearing away that wall of protection? Many of you hold seats upon this floor, to-day, that would be at home digging in some cornfield, had you told the people you would not respect their expressed and known will on this great question of taxation. This proviso proposes that you shall do, officially, what you told the people you would do. My proviso proposes to put that limit on the Legislature which you told the people the Constitution did. It proposes to give the people that protection which you said the Constitution gave them.

"Republicans, I call upon you to-day to redeem your promises; to act out here, in practice, what you preached last Spring and Fall. If you do not, the people shall know who have deceived them. Mr. Speaker, you will remember that the railroad bills, which passed this House, did so by a combination known as the "Omnibus," and those who voted for these appropriations are said, by gentlemen on this floor, to be riding in the "omnibus," each passenger being pledged to each other on the principle "you tickle me and I will tickle you." Not a single one of these bills could have passed this House on its own merits; but by putting them all in the "omnibus" together they have been driven through. This proviso has created quite a stir among the passengers, and I see them begin to gather around the old "omnibus" again, which is hastily being put in motion to gather up all the Railroad men to defeat this proviso. Already the "whipper in" with his burly form, is in his seat, and with powerful and strong muscular arm, is cracking the whip over those who are halting by the way because they love the Constitution and do not wish to violate it. The bugle of the "Manager" has sounded for it to move forward! In the name of the people of North Carolina I cry, stop!

"Republicans, let not that omnibus move an inch! The Constitution of your State lies in its way. I have thrown it there by this proviso.

"It is your Constitution: it is the work of your hands. Will you preserve it or will you drive rough shod over it, as you go thundering along the high road, to the ruin of the people and the bankruptcy of the State? Railroad men, I appeal to you to stop and think what you are doing, before you go farther. Your combined bills of "special taxes," levying a tax of 60 cents on the hundred dollars worth of property; the Revenue bill in addition to the "special tax" levies a tax of forty cents on the same hundred dollars worth of property, and then finally the counties must tax thirty or forty cents more. All these taxes together amount to at least one dollar and thirty cents on the hundred dollars worth of property, which is just twice the amount your Constitution permits to tax. I know, in your eagerness to have a Railroad to run by your door, you are apt to forget the ruin you are about to bring upon the people. I must think you all mean to do right, but you have allowed railroads to run away with your better judgment. In your heated imagination, you hear nothing but the whistle of the steam engine as the iron horse, with his hoofs of iron and ribs of steel, goes dashing by your door. Let me tell you, before you hear that shrill sound, you will hear other sounds that will be more piercing, and that will carry sorrow instead of joy to your hearts. If you strike out this proviso and persist in collecting this amount of tax, you will hear instead of the rattling of the cars, the murmur of the populace for relief; instead of the sweet notes of the maiden, the wailing of the mother as she surrenders some cherished household god to the tax-gatherer—instead of the merry song of the son, the curses and imprecations of the father against those who have brought this trouble and ruin upon him, as he gathers around him his wife and children to bid farewell to the home of his childhood, which he has been compelled to vacate to give place to its new occupant from a foreign land, who has just purchased it at the sheriff's sale "for taxes."

"But, Mr. Speaker, what do we hear said in reply to these unpleasant truths? It is said let us levy the tax, and then if any one thinks it is unconstitutional let him test it before the Supreme Court. But I do not wish to leave this an open question. It will cost more to take a case up to the Supreme Court than to pay the tax, and there are but few men able to incur the expense. I know, sir, the judges occupy a high position in the confidence of the people of North Carolina, because they are men incorruptible, and learned in the law. So far the waves of party faction have broken harmless at the base of the throne upon which they quietly sit. But after the innovations and attacks that have been made upon the judiciary of our land, who can say that this bulwark of the people's rights may not soon be swept away, and all be left to the pitiless mercy of the cormorants that hover around the Capitol of the dear old State, feeding upon the life-blood of the people, and whose constant cry is a few more millions of bonds? It is to avoid the costs of bills of injunction, to checkmate these men who are too selfish to be just, to save the credit of the State and to prevent the utter ruin of the people, that I have offered this proviso."

The proviso was defeated by three majority, and the bonds were issued, but Governor JARVIS did not give up the fight. At the session of 1869–'70 he introduced in the House, and Major JOHN W. GRAHAM in the Senate, a bill to repeal the laws authorizing the issuing of the bonds and the levying of a tax to pay the interest on them. The passage of this bill was opposed by such men as W. A. MOORE and A. S. SEYMOUR, both afterwards made judges by their party, but after a three weeks' struggle the bill was finally forced through the House and became a law. The journals will show that in this struggle JARVIS was the leader, and with the Spartan band of Democrats enough Republicans joined to secure its passage. As a result of this the people were only taxed one year to pay the interest on these bonds, and are not likely to be taxed to pay them another year.

JUDGE BUXTON, or Judge BUXTON'S friends, have tired of a joint canvass. As the Judge is in Fayetteville, we suppose there will be no chance to dodge discussion there to-day. But Chairman COOPER has announced appointments for him in Granville, Franklin, Wake and Chowan, which take him about as far away from harm as possible.

THE SOUTH AND THE CENSUS.

The unlucky Southern States, says the Macon Messenger, seem bound to get into trouble, whether they will or no. "This time the census is doing it—absolutely outraging the North and West by showing a more rapid growth in population. Now, everybody knows, or ought to know, that considering the horrid social disorders which have ruled triumphant in the Southern States during the last decade—the many millions of negroes said to have been murdered, as set forth in the Ku Klux testimony printed by Congress—the countless thousands of "fugitives" who have run off to Kansas and elsewhere, that these Southern States had no right to grow. And yet the census figures show that they have grown, and, what is more, they have grown faster than the North—faster than even the West, which has hitherto pretty much monopolized the business of growing.

We will not publish the figures by which these facts are demonstrated; they are in some respects incomplete. But returns, mostly official, from twenty-eight States and three Territories are printed, showing a population of 39,710,152, against 31,089,652 in 1870, and indicating an aggregate gain of 8,620,500, or nearly thirty per cent. Now, of these, seventeen Northern and Western States show a total population of 25,234,253, and an increase of 4,850,592, or 23.50 per cent. The eleven Southern States have a total population of 14,238,331, an increase of 3,671,087, or 34.70 per cent. The five Southern States to be heard from may bring down the per centage of the South to about 33. It is not probable that it will go below that. On the other hand, the five Northern States to be heard from will not increase the per centage of that section. It is not likely to be above 23, all the fast growing States having reported. The total population of the country will be about 50,000,000; that of the South 18,000,000. These figures indicate a gain of nine or ten Congressmen, if the number under the new apportionment remains at 293. If the number is increased the gain of the South will increase proportionately.

These revelations are gratifying to the South, not merely in the facts themselves, but also as the harbinger of more signal results in the future. The South wants lifting up as to a sense of her own capacity for progress. We have heard so much poor talk from the Northern brethren—we have been ridiculed so much for our lack of progress, that really it will help us to know that after all, spite of our lack of foreign immigration, we are growing faster than they are, with all their advantages.

Every man will look with greater hope and confidence on our vast area of uncultivated lands. Time and patience will bring them into demand. The fact that we have grown faster than the West in the last ten years, will put a new value on them, and we shall outstrip the West at a double rate in the next decade, and when once foreign immigration has taken a set this way, our progress will be unprecedented, because it will be so liberally rewarded. When Southern crops come to be cultivated with the rigid economy and industry applied to those of the Northwest, and the results become known the world over, the wave of immigration will surprise everybody by its extent and grandeur.

These figures, too, will set all the Northern politicians to thinking. Their consequences are not always a loss of relative federal power, when they counted on a heavy gain, but will raise the question about the "star of empire" in the future. It is not certain that this star will move westward forever. The vast regions of the South may yet contend for supremacy, and at all events the pettifogging arts of panders to the colored population will look little enough in the prospect of the speedy development of a great white population."

FROM JULY 1st, 1868, to September 30th, 1870, while the Radicals had possession of the State Government the conduct of the ordinary, regular business of the State cost $1,315,241.11. For the three years ending September 30th, 1879, the whole State Government was in possession of the Democrats, and the cost was $509,744.58, a saving to the people of $805,496.53. That is to say the Radical waste was $805,496.53, nearly twice as much as the Democrats expended; in other words that it cost the people nearly three times as much to run the Government under Radical rule as it does to run it under Democratic rule. We take no account of the millions of dollars for which the Radicals issued worthless State bonds, only of the money wrung by taxation from the people. If the people wish the worst Government the world ever saw, and to pay the highest price for it, let them turn Radicals; but if they wish the best Government, for the least money, they will stand by the Democratic party.

THE TEST of good wages, says the Philadelphia Record, is its purchasing power. An artificial system, whether of "fiat money" or of "protection," that raises prices all around, is essentially deceptive. Wages may go up nominally in the general inflation of values, but there is no increase in the ability to buy. A mechanic or laborer is better off with a dollar a day for his work if it costs him but half of that sum to live than he is with five dollars a day when it takes the whole of it.

THE FIRST SENATORIAL DISTRICT.

The Democratic nominees for the First Senatorial District are Mr. WILLIAM H. MANNING, of Gates county, and Mr. JAMES M. WOODHOUSE, of Currituck county.

Mr. MANNING is a native of Chowan county. He has never been in public life, performing the quiet and peaceful occupations of his farm, to which he has ever devoted his time and talent. He is an intelligent, dignified, christian gentleman, and is universally popular with his people. He has long been a prominent and active member of the Baptist church, and is said to be a winning speaker.

Mr. WOODHOUSE is a native of Currituck county. He, too, is a farmer, but has served his county as a Justice of the Peace, and County Commissioner. He was a member of the House of Representatives in the sessions of 1870–'72–'74–'79 and 1880. His genial, courteous bearing and generous disposition, and his fidelity, as a representative to the interests of the Albemarle section, have justly won for him the esteem and confidence of his people.

The district is composed of the counties of Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Hertford, Gates, Chowan and Perquimans.

SECOND SENATORIAL DISTRICT.

The counties of Tyrrell, Washington, Martin, Dare, Beaufort and Hyde, constituting the Second Senatorial District, have presented the names of J. T. RESPASS, of Beaufort, and S. B. SPRUILL, of Washington, as the Democratic candidates.

Mr. RESPASS is a native of Beaufort county, and has been all his life a farmer. He entered the Confederate service early in 1861, and was faithful to the end. He was in many of the severest battles and was wounded three times. He has held the office of magistrate and is a member of the present State Senate. A man of stern integrity, high character and excellent sense, he is a legislator useful alike to his constituents and to the State.

Mr. SPRUILL, of Washington, is son of Col. S. B. SPRUILL, of Bertie county. He is about 33 years old and has never been in public life. He is a practicing lawyer, a good speaker and a solid, earnest Democrat, who will make a good Senator.

HARNETT'S REPRESENTATIVE.

The Democrats of Harnett have nominated and will elect Mr. DANIEL E. GREEN to represent that county in the next House of Representatives.

Mr. GREEN is a new man, having never held any office except that of County Surveyor, but from the accounts his neighbors and friends give of him he will be a valuable member. He is a man of strong sound common sense, and is bold, fearless and uncompromising in his political beliefs, and indeed the same may be said of all his beliefs. He is a farmer, and his case is really one of those in which the office has sought the man and has found a good one.

A VERY COMPLETE history of Governor JARVIS'S fight against the special tax bonds has been printed in THE NEWS. But as there is some curiosity to see his manner of speech in those days, we reprint in to-day's NEWS, from the Sentinel's reports the remarks of Governor JARVIS, then Capt. JARVIS, of Tyrrell, made in the House of Representatives on February 17th, 1869, on his proviso, which, if adopted, would have defeated the fraud. The efforts made by Governor JARVIS to prevent the shackling of all the interests and honor of the State by these unlawful bonds are of a piece with his whole conduct during those dark days. He never doubted and he never dallied, but he resisted the tyranny of a powerful and corrupt majority with plain, hard, fearless words and manly deeds.

THE WASHINGTON National Republican thinks it conclusive evidence of fraud in the census-taking that the Southern increase has been in the agricultural districts. The Republican has lost its head in its desire for another war for somebody else to fight, or it would have seen that it has cited a fact precisely meeting and disproving its charge. People do not come South to dwell in cities; they have bigger ones at home. They come from the Northern agricultural districts and go into agricultural districts at the South, where land is cheap, soil fertile, and society good. They have come so steadily that New England's farm country, so the Tribune says, is depopulated, and is going to stay so until people are paid to occupy its abandoned farms. It is very nearly at that point now; the Tribune says that "many of its large farms will not sell for enough to-day to pay for building the stone wall which incloses and divides them."

General Walker, the Superintendent of the Census, tells the fraud-howlers that he does not deal in guesses, but facts, and that he has no reason to be dissatisfied with the work done; if any frauds have been committed another count would be ordered to be taken by honest men. It was possible that in 31,000 enumeration districts there have been a few men who have acted dishonestly, but their work was easily remedied. General Walker took occasion to say that so far as he could now judge the census in the South had been fairly conducted, and he saw no cause for complaint.

Mountain Pleasures.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

WARM SPRINGS, August 11, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:—We have been here just a week, and the warm baths, mineral waters, the excellent mountain-pure air, and the delicious food that we get makes us feel like a new man. This resort is not patronized so largely by the eastern and central people of North Carolina as by people from other States, principally from the South, on account of its inaccessibility to people from those sections of the State, it being forty-one miles from here to Best's Station, the terminus of the Western North Carolina Railroad, and only nine miles to Wolf Creek, a station just across the Tennessee line; but notwithstanding this, the proprietors usually have about and yet they always find room for just a few more, like the horse-cars of New York and other large cities. Last Saturday the hacks brought us thirty-six (three dozen—we count by the dozen or gross here). This gives us about 450 guests. Raleigh is well represented; it has some of all sizes and ages. Prominent among the belles from our town are the Misses Tucker, Misses Bettie Haywood, Perkins and others. We are almost tempted to put that charming young Miss Sadie Green on our list; but we don't like to steal, and Warren county is just a little outside the corporate limits; but she is with us in being from the central part of the State.

AS MANY AS THEY CAN STOW,

OUR PRINCIPAL SPORTS

are courting, dancing, bathing, horseback-riding, fishing and hunting, (these latter two being always in order, for we never catch a fish or bag any game—Major Tucker's testimony,) and climbing the mountains, which, by the way, is very little sport to sandfiddlers. The scenery in this vicinity is beyond description, except by some such writer as Miss Fisher, who wrote "The Land of the Skies," a book which we recommend to those who would have some idea of the beauties of their native State.

So far as the curative properties of these waters are concerned, we would say that we think Dr. Howerton has found that Europeans used to hear of as one of America's wonders when first discovered. Rheumatics come here on sticks and crutches, scarcely able to move, and ere the first month has transpired they are prepared to trip the fantastic toe. An eminent divine of North Carolina, (a D. D., by the way,) came here two or three weeks ago, broken down in body and in mind, and he has so improved that he goes the rounds through the building at 3 o'clock in the morning singing Pinafore, and filling the guests' shoes with water. This is one of the few times, Mr. Editor, that we duly appreciated the advantages of having a large foot, our shoes being so large that he could not spare water enough to fill them, so we escaped.

THE NEWS is very popular here. The trouble is, a subscriber can't keep one long enough to read it; some one either "borrows, buys, begs or steals it." M.

The Good Templars.

[Reported for THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

GRAHAM, August 12, 1880.

A letter was read from Bro. Rev. R. H. Whitaker, announcing the death of his his wife. A committee to prepare resolutions of condolence submitted the following:

To the Officers and Members of the Grand Lodge:—

Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence to our brother, Rev. R. H. Whitaker, on the death of his estimable companion, which occurred on Wednesday, the 11th day of August, 1880, beg leave to submit the following:

WHEREAS, Death has entered the happy home of our dear Brother Whitaker and taken from him his dear wife, known throughout the length and breadth of our State for her many noble qualities of head and heart, and especially dear to the temperance host for her heroic labors for the cause; therefore

Resolved, That we, the Grand Lodge of Good Templars in session in Graham, while bowing with humble submission to this Providence, so hard to understand, cannot help the sorrow that fills our hearts nor stay the tears that fill our eyes; and,

Resolved, That we tender our dear Brother Whitaker the condolence of our stricken hearts in this his hour of sore trial and anguish.

"Welcomed at the pearly portal,
Ever more a welcome guest;
Welcomed to the life immortal
In the mansions of the blest."

Committee.

A resolution was adopted appointing a Committee to memorialize the next Legislature to enact a law prohibiting the sale of liquor within one mile of any church or school house in the State, excepting incorporated towns.

The report recommending the organization of a Dual Grand Lodge, was ably argued and the recommendation was not adopted.

N. B. Broughton and Wm. S. Ball the representatives to the Right Worthy Grand Lodge submitted their report.

T. C. Williams offered a resolution that the Legislative Committee memorialize the Legislature to so amend the local option law as to permit counties to vote upon license or prohibition without regard to townships. Adopted.

Resolution of thanks to Good Templars and citizens of Graham for hospitality and railroads for reduced fare were adopted.

The unwritten work was then exemplified.

One hundred dollars was ordered to be paid to T. C. Williams, P. G. W. C. T. for services past year. Five dollars were ordered paid the janitor.

AT NIGHT

a sociable was tendered in their hall by Graham Lodge, and we have never seen an occasion of more enjoyment to the young ladies and gentlemen for whose special benefit it was given, and we incline to the opinion that ties were formed that will make

"Two souls with but a single thought."

The Grand Lodge met at 11 p. m. and closed to meet in Clayton the second Tuesday in August 1881.

Population and Representation.

[Philadelphia Times.]

The population of the United States in 1870 was 38,925,598, and the act of February 2, 1872, fixed the number of members of the House at 292, and the quota of 131,425 was obtained of course by making 292 the divisor of the whole population. There was a proviso, however, that whenever a new State was admitted into the Union the Representatives assigned to it should be in addition to the number of 292, and it was under this proviso that on Colorado's admission into the Union her representative brought the membership of the House up to the present figures—293. The body is about large enough and there is little disposition to increase it beyond 300. It is to safe to say, indeed, that 300 will be the membership under the new act making an apportionment for the ten years from 1882 to 1892; and that number was contemplated in the census report of 1870. Upon this well-grounded supposition the subjoined estimate of the representation of each State in the Congresses of the next decade as compared with the present representation is based. Our table embraces the complete official returns, as far as possible, and in other cases trustworthy estimates. It gives the population of each State in 1870 and 1880 and the quota of population for each Representative is obtained by dividing the whole population in 1880, which is 49,157,404, by 300. The quota thus obtained is 163.858. To ascertain the number of Representatives for each State the number of its population is divided by this quota.

In dividing the population of each State by the quota of representation it frequently happens that there is a fractional remainder; thus Maine is entitled to three Representatives and has a surplus of 155,825. The practice has been to discard these fractions of a unit divisor, except that when the full number of Representatives is not made up, one additional member each is allowed to so many States with large fractions as may be necessary to supply the difference. Adhering to this practice of fractional adjustment the following States are in the above table given one member each more than they would be entitled to under a rejection of all fractions: Arkansas, Maine, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Michigan, Connecticut, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Mississippi, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Florida, Maryland, Louisiana and Kentucky. This filling up the number, the following States, with smaller fractions, will not be entitled to an additional Representative under the rule: Indiana, North Carolina, Missouri, Tennessee, Georgia, California, Colorado, Kansas, Illinois, New Hampshire, New York, Alabama and Vermont.

The losses and gains are pretty well distributed, but the greatest gains are made in the South and Northwest, and the greatest losses in the East. Alabama, Indiana, Maine, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Vermont lose one each, and New York loses two. On the other hand, Texas gains four, Kansas three, Minnesota two, Nebraska two, and California, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia each one. On this showing the net gain in what are commonly called the Southern States is five Representatives, and the gains in the Northwest being pulled down by the losses in the East, the net gain of the North is only two. This evidence of the growth of the South is indeed second only to the phenomenal growth of the Northwest as a curiosity of the census, and to many will be most unexpected, but reflection will easily account for it. First of all, it is notorious that the true population of the Southern States was not given in 1870. The enumeration was confided to most incompetent hands. Superintendent Walker is quoted as saying that fraud stalked over the land in the taking of the ninth census and the South was certainly its chosen stamping ground. The enumerators were often men of bad character and oftener too illiterate to do more than write their own names. This time there has been more care in the selection of enumerators and consequently greater thoroughness in the work. There has been, however, a great increase in these ten years by inter-State and foreign emigration to the South. Texas in particular has benefited by immigration. The profits of stock-raising, which has become a great industry, have tempted thousands to go to that State and take their money with them, and this has caused a demand for merchants and mechanics which the North has freely supplied. There has been an increase also from the extension of railway lines and the development of new fields of labor in uncovering her mineral resources. Arkansas has profited in the same way, only to a less extent than Texas. Good government, careful regard of the State's credit and cheap lands have made the waste places of Georgia glad and peopled her cities more thickly. Florida has had a great influx of health-seekers who became permanent residents, and the success of these in fruit growing has brought thousands in their train. Northern capital has unlocked the mines of Virginia and Northern men are working them, while parts of that State have been colonized by Englishmen in large numbers, and Northern and foreign skilled labor has found employment in the factories of Richmond, Lynchburg and Danville. Tennessee and North Carolina lands have been cleared and tilled by colonies sent out by societies in Old and New England. West Virginia has been overrun by Ohioans and Pennsylvanians, and railroads have explored the fastnesses of her mountains and exposed the treasures of iron and coal, to which people from distant States and countries have flocked without waiting for a second call. South Carolina and Louisiana, while behind in the race, have made some headway since the downfall of the carpet-baggers; while labor has more than taken the place of colored fugitives in Mississippi, and northern Alabama has fallen into the hands of iron masters and their employees.

The New Preacher.

HE INTRODUCES A NOVEL METHOD OF SALVATION.

[From the Little Rock Gazette.]

Services were first held in Calico Chapel last Sunday night. It had been announced that a new preacher would address the congregation, and that a new method of presenting Gospel facts would be adopted. The colored people were very anxious to hear the new preacher. A new way of presenting the Gospel excited curiosity. Sunday night the house was well filled. The preacher was rather late. Finally he came. All eyes were turned toward him. He was Jerry, the ex-politician. Ascending the pulpit, the old man wiped the perspiration from his brow and said, "Let us pray." The congregation bowed over, and the old man raised his hands and exclaimed: "Lord, de agent ob all light an' de destroyer ob all darkness, hab mussy on de sinners ob de lan.' Take de lie outen de mouts ob de politicians, an enable your servant to discharge his 'sponsible duties. Amen." The preacher wiped his face again, and after regarding his congregation for a few seconds said: "We'll omit de singin'. Dar hab been too much singin' an' too little action in djs worl'. De cricket sings and de bee labors. De cricket dies when winter comes, but de bee hab laid up his sweetness of 'pentance. Afore I enters inter de text it may not be outen place to tell my experience. I kin do it in a few words. I foun' I was on de wrong road, an' dat de man of my 'fluence good do much good. I quit politics, took out a license, an' am now a preacher. Now for de text. He dat libs by de sword shall perish by de sword.' De nalagous ob dis is, he who libs by de ballot-box must perish by de ballot-box. De salvation of a man's soul is wuth mor'n all de votes he kin git. He de garden of 'ligion hab grow'd up in de weeds. My mission is ter pull up de weeds. I 'poses ter make a reform. I was a politician an' den turned pr'acher. De Bible says further, preach de gospel to every libin creechur. What's de use preachin' ter de creechur ef de creechur won't heah? None. De Bible means dat year shall make 'em ter harken. I sees good many ole tuffs in dis house, an' wants 'em ter come up ter de mourner bench right now. Da's got ter come. De Lord doan say I wish you would do dis thing, but says you's got ter do it. Firmness is religion. De rock of ages is made outen flint. Mr. Johnson," said the preacher, addressing a sinner, "come up an' put yer head on dis bench. I's played kyards wid yer, but you'se got ter reform. Come on, I tell's yer; is yer comin'?"

"No, I isn't," said Mr. Johnson.

"Den I'll fetch yer. You's been standin' off de preachers long 'nough."

The preacher left the pulpit, advanced to where Mr. Johnson was standing and caught him by the collar.

"Turn me loose! I doan wanterdat truck with you, man."

"Come up heah ter dis bench, or I drag yer dar. De gospel is roused by time ob salvation is at han'."

"Turn me loose, I tells yer; I's a free man, and toats matches in my hat."

"Yes, an' yer'll toat sulphur in de hot ob yer garments. Come on heah, an' I jerk de stuffin' outen you."

The two men began struggling and the wildest confusion prevailed. "Sing de Tugboat of Zion," said the preacher, and the congregation obeyed. Finally Mr. Johnson was dragged to the bench. He was warned not to lift his head; and one deacon was stationed over him with a club he did not look up. "Go out and get in ter come in," said the preacher. "De fount ob der Lord must be 'tended, boy," exclaimed the preacher; "put your head in de board of 'penance. Go on, ur you'll be lame fur a week. Git down dar, man! Young ooman, put yer head down, down dar! When the Mount an' Senkum business fails, yers ter use de improved plan. Doan dat man out," exclaimed the preacher as a large individual made a break for the door. "Hole him. Now, raskil, would yer run from the Lord? When de lam' won't fetch 'em, yer use de ram. Da switched de lambs at Jericho, and de walls stood still, when da pushed wind through the horn da tumbled. Oh, yer doan't want cum, does yer? Deacon, hit dis man." The deacon sprang forward and was on the eve of braining the sinner when he announced his willingness to go. Some fifteen or twenty were thus taken up, frightened by so determined an example the other sinners meekly obeyed. Within an hour from the time preaching began seventy-five mourners were on the bench. Old Jerry stood in the midst exhorting. "Dar's a bright star shinin' in de East, put yer head down," he said, as a few looked up as if hunting for the star. "De gospel car is rollin'. Sinners is comin' to 'pentance." A refractory mourner jumped up and started to run, but was promptly knocked down by one of the deacons. The meeting lasted until nearly daylight, and the preacher left highly satisfied with the result. It is said other preachers are going to adopt this method, and that a sweeping religious campaign will soon be instituted.

This comes fresh from a summer resort. What game of cards is first mentioned in the Bible? Give it up? Nebuchadnezzar.

Ah! he smiled so blandly as they rubbed him down—
They made him believe 'twas the easiest thing;
But he tried it a quarter—out of wind he was found,
And he smilingly swings himself out of the ring.

Halifax county is a great county, and its people are great people. Halifax county jail is the only jail recorded in history which was ever broken into, and it is the only county in whose jail wounded honor was satisfied by an appeal to fisticuffs. There has been a prisoner in Halifax jail for some time, against whom an outsider had a grudge, which he gratified by cursing the prisoner whenever he passed the jail. The jailer grew tired of hearing his boarders abused, and so the other day he caught the outsider, and putting him in the room with the prisoner, told them to fight it out. The result came speedily. The prisoner thrashed the outsider until he could not have told himself from a last year's corpse, and then kicked him down the steps, and then kicked him out of the jail door, and then went back to his cell and laughed. And now that outsider walks on the other side of the street, and lifts his hat every time he passes Halifax jail.

Cotton, the farmers say, will open earlier than usual, and bids fair to be the largest yield since or during the war. We were asked to look at a regular little tree yesterday bearing sixty fully formed bolls, eight of which were well open.

It was the young Democrats of North Carolina, says the Charlotte Observer, that nominated Thomas J. Jarvis for Governor. Correct, and it is the duty of every young Democrat to connect himself as an active working member of a Club and devote his entire energy to moulding the political action of some younger than himself.

Dr. Worth, State Treasurer, left yesterday for Grantham, Wayne county, to address the voters of that locality in regard to who is the best man in the State for State Treasurer. Dr. Worth need only say: "Gentlemen, I have been State Treasurer for four years, and the party has placed my name on the ticket again." That's enough.

The entire delegation in attendance upon the Druggists' Convention just closed in this city, were delighted with Raleigh and its hospitality, and were profuse in their words of praise and thanks to their brother druggists of this place. Those who did the most talking were in favor of permanently locating the sessions of their association at the capital of the State.

What did he mean? Who was he? Where was he headed for? It was a very large man with an old army cavalry sabre, a horse-pistol and a double-barrelled shot gun who went ranting through the Capitol Square yesterday evening. When Mack Straughn, the day-watchman, saw the butchering utensils he took a dead-line for the dome of the State House.

DEPARTED.—Many of our people are away upon pleasure trips, and still they go. Among the departures yesterday were Mr. Frank Tighe and sister, for New York; a party of five left for Morehead, and others for the mountains.

RETURNED.—We are pleased to know that John Gatling, Esq., and family have returned from an extended Northern tour.

A. M. McPheeters, Esq., came in yesterday from a trip through Virginia.

John Calvert, Esq., for some weeks rambling among the Northern watering places, put in his appearance yesterday morning.

COMMISSIONS.—The Private Secretary was busy yesterday sealing with the Great Seal of the State about thirty commissions for officers of the North Carolina State Guard. There is much interest being manifested just now among the military companies of the State in anticipation of the King's Mountain Centennial, which takes place in October just before the State Fair.

SUPREME COURT.—Court opened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. All the Justices were present.

The consideration of appeals at the end of the docket was resumed.

R. O. Burton, Adm'r, vs. Wilmington & Weldon Railroad Company, from Northampton, was argued, on the petition to rehear, by J. B Batchelor and Day & Zollicoffer for the plaintiff, and Gilliam & Gatling for the defendants.

Pending the argument in this case, the Court adjourned until 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning.

OUR COLORED FIREMEN.—Yesterday evening our colored firemen returned from their excursion to Charlotte, where they report they had a most pleasant time. It is indeed gratifying to the citizens of Raleigh to know that the Charlotte papers speak in such a commendatory and flattering manner of the good behavior and quiet deportment of the visiting firemen. We know the worth of the Victors and Bucket men to our department and appreciate all that may be said to the favor of our colored firemen, who have never failed to carry off the palm when contesting with their colored brethren in the State, either for good work, good deportment or good citizenship.

FUNERAL OF COL. HARRISON.—The funeral services of the late Col. W. H. Harrison took place at the Edenton Street Methodist Church yesterday morning and were largely attended. The funeral procession moved up Fayetteville street in the following order: Band, Raleigh Light Infantry with reversed arms, carriages with pall-bearers, the hearse, carriages with family of deceased and citizens. The services at the church were conducted by Rev. W. J. W. Crowder, assisted by Rev. Dr. Atkinson, of the Second Presbyterian Church. At their close the procession reformed and accompanied the remains to Oakwood Cemetery, where they were buried. Messrs. W. H. Tucker, Eugene Grissom, N. S. Harp, J. J. Litchford, A. Creech, B. C. Manly, C. B. Root, J. F. Taylor, W. C. Parker and R. C. Badger acted as pall-bearers.

Messrs. E. H. Meadows, Eugene Grissom, J. C. Munds, Frank H. Heartt, and J. R. Young were appointed a committee to present the proposed Pharmaceutical law to the next Legislature.

What North Carolinians are Doing.

GLEANINGS FROM STATE EXCHANGES.

Bishop Atkinson is at the White Sulphur Springs, and the Star learns is decidedly better in health.

Rev. Dr. A. Ranson, of the Associate Reform Church, aged 59 years, died in Mecklenburg on the 12th inst.

The Moore Index reports great damage to the crops along Deep River—before the rains "the finest ever known."

The Charlotte Democrat says that the damage by the rains in that section and west of it was not near so heavy as in the east.

The wheat crop in the country near Fayetteville has not equalled expectations. The Examiner says that the acreage was larger, but its yield cut short by a dry June.

The Asheville Citizen says the new census shows that the North Carolina Indian population numbers 1,109; distributed through Cherokee, Graham, Swain, Jackson, and Macon counties.

The Monroe Enquirer says that "the rains did considerable damage in the northern portion of Anson. Corn crop in the lowlands almost a total loss in some sections."

Of Lenoir cotton, the Journal says that "with good fruiting weather for the remainder of August we may expect something better than an average crop." In Onslow it reports too much rain below Jacksonville.

The Charlotte Democrat quotes flour at $3.00 to $3.25; wheat $1.00 to $1.10; corn and corn meal 63; oats 55 to 60; sweet potatoes 60; Irish 75; butter 20; chickens 10 to 15; eggs 12 to 13; no change in country liquors.

The Philadelphia Record has read the returns from Littleton and Davidson Townships, North Carolina. It says: The unexpectedly large increase of population in the Southern States is an integer in the political problem that disturbs the arithmetic men. Our own opinion is that a great share of the blame in the matter may be laid at the doors of the malignant women of the South.

The Enfield Sentinel reports much damage by the rains. "Fishing Creek is higher than it has been for many years. Mr. G. W. Branch who has his entire corn crop in his low grounds reports sixty acres of corn under water. The water has been six feet deep in the road between the county bridge and the railroad. The woods and meadows presented the appearance of one vast body of water. The creek was at least fifty feet deep in many places, and where usually the water is not over two feet deep, a steamer could float easily."

STATE POLITICAL NOTES:—

David M. Furches, of Statesville, has received the Republican nomination for Congress in the 7th District and is to be well beaten by Gov. Armfield.

Capt. Natt Atkinson is said to be running as an independent candidate against Gen. R. B. Vance! The Citizen says he made a speech at Asheville on Tuesday last, "devoting himself to assaults upon Gov. Jarvis, Capt. Carter and all who favored the passage of the bill under which the road was sold, and also the bill compromising the public debt. He was particularly severe upon the Railroad bill and its supporters, denounced the bill as a fraud, and a deception, that he was satisfied all the time it would never accomplish the building of the road, and that it was only meant to deceive and swindle. He consulted Judge Merrimon and other eminent lawyers who so advised him, and therefore he worked and voted to get it so arranged as to compel the building of the road." Mr. Carter replied to the iron-clad, who voted for the bill and passed himself off in the Legislature as its most devoted friend.

CHAPEL HILL NOTES:—

Chapel Hill, August 12.—Henry Ward, Rom. Shaw and Lum Brewer, all colored, were yesterday sent to jail. They are charged with the burning of Mrs. Long's house, which happened some time ago, and stealing therefrom some flour. Henry Ward a day or two ago broke into a house in the country, the occupant being absent, and stole a sack of wheat. He was caught, confessed and told that the other two, with his assistance, committed the felony on the premises of Mrs. Long. Two of these men have been objects of especial suspicion for a considerable time; they never work, or do so rarely, and people have wondered how they got their living. The mystery seems to be cleared up.

Our State University Railroad is rapidly nearing completion. The grading is completed within about one and a half miles of the town. X.

REVENUE COLLECTIONS.—Collections in the office of Col. I. J. Young yesterday amounted to $1,630.18.

The Landlord and Tenant Act.

[From the Fayetteville Examiner.]

Judge Buxton declares on the stump against the Landlord and Tenant Act. "It is a mill," says he, "to grind laborers and croppers." He ought in the same strain have denounced the law which authorizes one man to secure a debt due another by means of a mortgage. The mortgage gives to the mortgagor a credit he could not otherwise obtain. And so the Landlord and Tenant Act enables a poor man to obtain land for cultivation, by securing to the landlord the rent due him for the use of his land. Abolish the lien on the crops produced, which the landowner now has by the operation of law, and how is he to secure the payment of his rent when it shall be due? Why, just as the merchant secures his advance to the tenant. The crop or something else of value will have to be mortgaged to secure the payment of the rent, otherwise the cropper will not be able to procure land for cultivation. And who will have to pay for the writing and recording of this instrument by which the payment of the rent is to be secured? Will it be the landlord or the tenant? The latter of course. If the laudlord actually pay it, he will be very apt in fixing the amount of rent to include the cost incidental to securing that rent. As the Landlord and Tenant Act now stands, the law itself gives the lien on the crop to secure the rent to the landlord, and thereby saves all expense and trouble of writing, executing and recording a mortgage for that purpose. Repeal that law and you at once increase legal difficulties and saddle costs on the very class of laborers and croppers, whose interest Judge Buxton professes to have so much at heart.

Judge Buxton may have a personal interest in having the Landlord and Tenant Act repealed. If he should fail to be elected Governor, (and we think he will) he may return to the practice of the law. Should the Landlord and Tenant Act be altered to suit the views of the Republican party there will be more mortgages to be written and more litigation over the construction of those mortgages than under the law as it is. This will help the lawyers. It is a mighty dull time with that excellent class of citizens, and if the Republican candidate for Governor is not actuated by a spirit of benevolence towards his professional brethren in his denunciation of the act under consideration, he is perhaps looking out for number one.

Jarvis and Buxton.

[Kinston Journal, "Independent."]

* * * As an independent paper the Journal proposed to make a fair report of the two speeches, but in fact the speaking was altogether a one-sided affair. Judge Buxton was a mere baby in the Governor's hands; was routed, horse, foot and dragoons—was so thoroughly worsted that even his political opponents sympathized with him. He seems to be poorly posted in political matters; has no voice—can hardly be heard fifteen paces off—and seems to have no idea about conducting a rough-and-tumble political fight. He may be a closet politician, but certainly has no business on the stump.

On the other hand Governor Jarvis, though laying no claim to oratory, has few superiors as a shrewd, effective stump speaker. His forte is in having the facts and figures at his command and being able to adapt them to the comprehension of the masses. His speech at Trenton in 1876 we thought was the most effective address delivered there during the campaign, although Vance and Ransom had both made speeches there a short time before.

Western North Carolina Railroad.

[Charlotte Observer, 13th.]

From Col. A. B. Andrews, Superintendent of the Western North Carolina Railroad, we learn that a meeting of Directors of the Road will take place in Raleigh next Saturday. Enough iron has been bought to repair the road-bed, change the track by Newton and complete the road to Asheville. Col. Andrews goes up the road to-day, prepared to pay the floating debt. He left the city last evening, expecting to meet Mr. Best in Salisbury and accompany him up the road. Col. Andrews says the work on the road will be vigorously prosecuted. He has called on the State for the road's quota of convicts, and will have them at work very soon.

"So, Colonel," said the Observer man, "we may say on your authority that everything is all right."

"Yes, all right."

The Talking Owl.

[Tom Evans's Version of the Story.]

A tramp who was in camp around Greensboro several days, knowing the propensity of some of the merchants for shop parrots, one or two having bought such birds in Cincinnati at fifty dollars, caught an owl in the woods and being no mean ventriloquist he took it to a certain shop keeper and passed it off as a talking owl, selling it to the grocer for twenty-five dollars. He told him if the owl ever got obstinate and wouldn't talk just to blow in its ear. Now the shop keeper and his wife were always at cross purposes and had stiff quarrels every day, but both were curious to hear the thing talk. As the old fellow blew in the owl's ear it seized him fast with one paw by the beard, and he whooped for the old woman to blow in its ear and make it let go, but it seized her by the ear with the other paw, and there it held them both face to face as they bellowed manfully for the Irish porter to come and take him off.

"Ah! ha!" roared Pat, as he ran in, "I'll be blest if that owl h'ain't a pace maker, be jabbers boss, if ye'll kiss the mistis, the pratty bird will sing ye a song."

The old couple just want to see that tramp once more, that's all.

WAIFS:—

A boy aged twelve years and a girl of thirteen were married the other day. Uncle John says it was a case of children playing with matches.

A "reliable gentleman" living in Botetourt county, Va., says that Richard McKnight, of that county, some time ago finished a sixty days' fast. He says McNight was a very large and corpulent man, who became a confirmed hypochondriac, and finally refused to take any nourishment for sixty days, at the end of which time he died.

The Two Committees.

[From the New York Herald, 12th.]

There is one peculiarity about the correspondence of the Republican National Committee as compared with the letters received at the Democratic headquarters. At the latter place reports are daily received containing information relative to Republicans who intend to vote for General Hancock. The Republicans who send letters to their National Committee are content with reporting that "the party" is all right in their part of the country. No Democrat has as yet been found, at least not by any Republican correspondent, who will support General Garfield. The Republicans claim, however, that there is no serious, if any, defection from their ranks. They affect to treat with contempt the stories that are being circulated of desertions from the party, and say that there is a strong probability that the solid business vote of the country will be cast for the Republican nominees.

How History is Made.

[From the New York World.]

The London Telegraph says, in the course of an excellent and interesting article on Sir Walter Raleigh and the neglect he has experienced at the hands of modern English men: "It becomes us not to forget that Raleigh is held in far warmer remembrance by the citizens of the United States, and especially by those who now reside in Virginia and North Carolina, than by the modern English inhabitants of the country which gave him birth. Virginia hails in him the first European who appreciated the delights of that fascinating nicotian weed which she produces in abundance, and which is now one of the most popular luxuries of civilized mankind; and North Carolina has heard so much of his wanderings about Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, on her exposed sea-coasts, that she has named her principal city, which is also her legislative capital, 'Raleigh,' in his honor." In point of fact, Raleigh never wandered about Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, his expedition to those waters in 1584 having been under the command of Amidas and Barlow. Raleigh himself did set out with Sir Humphrey Gilbert in 1579, but they had to return without making land, and in 1583 an accident prevented him from again accompanying his ill-fated half-brother. And as to Raleigh's connection with the introduction of tobacco into Europe, it should not be forgotten that the weed was cultivated in Portugal a generation before Raleigh's birth and thence taken to France by Jean Nicot when Raleigh was only a boy of eight.

A Well-ended Fast.

[New York Tribune.]

A young mechanic, condemned to four years' imprisonment, in Italy, has managed to starve himself to death in thirty days. Dr. Tanner fasted forty and is none the worse for it. But the Italian willed to die, while Tanner willed to live—a very important difference in the two cases. There used to be a theory that people need not die at all if their wills were strong enough. Absurd as it was, it contained a grain of truth. Weak-willed men succumb to accidents or attacks of disease, while men of strong will live through. The experience of army surgeons abounds in instances of remarkable recoveries of plucky fellows who seemed to have no chance of fighting off death, and of equally remarkable deaths of soldiers with flabby resolution who succumbed to slight wounds. On the whole, the mechanic's case is rather more interesting than Dr. Tanner's. Both confute a host of medical writers, who say that nine days' abstinence from food will kill a healthy man; but the young Italian has demonstrated that a man who tries to kill himself by the starvation process may be a whole month finishing the job.

The survey by Major J. B. Yates for the extension of the Virginia Midland railroad through North Carolina shows that the route is excellent. The people are enthusiastic for the extension, and are giving the right of way all along the line.

The arrivals of immigrants at New York are perceptibly falling off. The landing agent of Castle Garden says that this is on account of the harvest time in Europe, and that during August the number landed always shows a decided falling off from the spring months. The total number of immigrants at New York will not this month amount to more than 21,000 or 22,000.

The reunion of Federal veterans at Columbus, Ohio, closed yesterday with a procession of five thousand men. There were seventy-five thousand spectators. President Hayes and General Sherman were in the line, and their carriages could hardly pass because of the people trying to shake hands with the President. In the procession were "Sherman's bummers," with captured flags and ordnance, two old batteries and "old Bill," the only surviving horse of the Ohio volunteer cavalry.

On Wednesday in Henrico County Court, J. W. Hoenminger, who had been summoned as a juror to try a case of horse stealing, upon going to the clerk's desk to be sworn in, refused to serve, because there was a negro on the jury. The Judge thereupon ordered a fine of $250 to be imposed on Hoenminger with ten days' imprisonment in jail for contempt. Hoenminger subsequently purged himself of contempt and concluded to serve, and his punishment was remitted.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Texas and Pacific Railway Company was held in Philadelphia on Tuesday last. The total transportation receipts for the last year were $2,589,221.61 and the transportation expenses $1,543,517.75, leaving net earnings of $1,045,703.86. The interest charges were $732,740 and the surplus on the year's business $312,963.86, which was increased to $343,176.87 by the addition of a previous balance. This result was accomplished on a mileage of 443 miles, the same as the preceding year. The transportation receipts increased 21.21 per cent., and the net earnings from transportation 91.9, while the transportation expenses were decreased 3.08. The percentage of total operating expenses was 59.61, against 74.53 last year, a decrease of 14.78 per cent. The company owns 4,851,702 acres of land.

The Greenbackers of Pennsylvania have determined to vote for one-half of the Republican Presidential electors and one-half the Democratic electors. In this way they hope to neutralize the vote of the State by dividing it, calculating that the Greenback strength is sufficient to carry through every man placed upon their ticket. There is a possibility of success in such a movement. It is a perilous possibility for the Republicans. We cannot see that Democrats need worry about it.

The Tramp Imitates Editors.

AND FARES BETTER THAN THE BRETHREN SAY THEY DO.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

They were holding an out-door ward meeting the other night, and a speaker had just commenced to warm up to his work, when a stranger with all his worldly "duds" in an old sheep-skin on his back, boots gone, hat going and a dyed-in-the-wool tramp air about him, halted on the outskirts of the crowd. The speech soon caught him, and he began to applaud. At the end of every sentence he clapped his hands and roared like a fog-horn. No matter whether the speaker "hit 'em" or not, the stranger never failed to come down with the applause, and he carried a good share of the crowd with him. After the speaker had finished, and while he was wiping his heated brow, the tramp approached him and said:

"That 'ere speech was one of the best I ever heard in all my life."

"Ah? I'm glad it pleased you."

"Pleased me! Why, it lifted me right off'n my feet! I tell you, you're a born orator, and I just wish I could stay in this town and hear you make a speech every night."

"Yes, I wish you could."

"But I can't. I am on my way West. I shall, however, think of your speech a hundred times a day. I can feel the electricity of it yet, and—say, can't you lend me half a dollar to help me on?"

"Why, I don't you. Why should I lend you half a dollar?"

"Oh, come now—don't try to ride any high horse over me. You know how loud I hollered, and you know as well as I do that if I hadn't put in my best licks you'd have fallen as flat as a shingle! You are a great orator, sir, and that was a great speech, but if you don't know that hollering is what does the business, you'd better hang right up."

The orator pondered over the matter for a few seconds, and then probably concluded that the reasoning was sound, as he passed over the money.

WAIFS:—

The soft, still dawn steals up the whitening sky;
The lights are out, the music dumb and dead.
Beneath the stars together, she and I,
An hour ago—what was it that we said?
Strange gladness thrills my heart as I recall
Her whispered words: "I love you best of all."

A flock of girls is called a bevy; a bevy of wolves a pack; a pack of thieves a gang; a gang of angels a host; a host of porpoises a shoal; a shoal of buffaloes a herd; a herd of children a troop; a troop of partridges a covey; a covey of beauties a galaxy; a galaxy of ruffians a horde; a horde of rubbish a heap; a heap of oxen a drove; a drove of blackguards a mob; a mob of whales a school; a school of worshippers a congregation; a congregation of engineers a corps; a corps of robbers a band; a band of locusts a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd.

Any chicken can do what Tanner has done. An Albanian living in Albany missed a fine young chicken from his poultry-yard a month ago. On Tuesday morning, as his wife was having some refuse taken out of the yard, an old bucket, which had not been in use for some time, was overturned. Underneath the bucket was the young fowl. It had been caught in the trap, and had been without food and water over twenty-four days. The chicken looked emaciated, and seemed depressed in spirits. Pulse normal, temperature normal, sphygmographic tracings weak and irregular, muscular pressure undetermined. The feathered faster was given feed in judicious quantities, and has already recovered its general sprightliness.

Ye Sons of Freemen, Wake to Glory.

AIR: Marseilles Hymn.

BY SENEX.

Ye sons of freemen, wake to glory;
Hark! Hark! your country bids you rise!
Your children, wives and grandsires hoary,
Behold their tears and hear their sighs.
Shall officials hired, corruption breeding,
With a suborned press, a plundering band,
Corrupt and desolate the land,
While hope and liberty lie bleeding?

CHORUS.—To arms! to arms! ye braves!
The avenging sword unsheath!
March on! march on!
All hearts resolved
For victory or death!

How dark and loud the storm is rolling,
And thousands for the bribes take rise,
And all of them for offices howling;
And lo! our shops and mines are closed.
And shall we tamely view this ruin,
And let such creatures with guilty stride
Spread desolation far and wide,
With crimes and blood their hands imbrueing?

See them stand, by arms surrounded,
And hark! how loud they boast and swear
They'll hold on, their power unbounded,
Though they may have to fight everywhere.
Like slaves this motly horde would lead us,
And in terror bid us them adore.
But who are they that hurt us so?
Up, freemen, and sweep them out before us!

Home Rule and Liberty! can we resign thee?
Here where first was felt thy generous flame.
Can dungeon bolts and bars confine thee,
Or hangman's whips thy spirit tame?
No! too long the world's wept, bewailing
The fiendish daggers that tyrants wield.
But Hancock's now our guard and shield.
